Report Comments

End-of-course evaluations results, as one indicator of teaching effectiveness, are used:

- a. to help instructors improve future offerings of courses;
- b. to inform students about courses and instructors;
- c. as a component of the teaching dossier; and
- d. to help administrators and faculty committees in their decision-making processes.

Written comments are treated as confidential and are not made available to the McGill community.

The course ratings reported here are only one indicator of teaching effectiveness and these results should be treated with caution since they represent reports on only one particular course.

 Most of the time whenever we needed any clarification she had no issue helping us in class and outside of class. Always very prompt with her emails. Sometimes when we did have questions her responses might have sidetracked from the focus of the question

I really enjoyed our case study. Gave me an insight into a little bit of what the financial world might entail for portfolio management. Being able to take control over our own decisions and justifying the reasons behind our choices is more effective than having one right answer for the project.
